Wel-come

Dear Partner,

Franchising allows the aspiring business to become the owner of one or more locations of a larger company. There are two parties in franchising, i.e., a franchisee and a franchisor.

A franchisee is a group or a person buying a franchise together. The franchisee comes to terms with the big company (franchisor) on how the business will run. In turn, they get all the rights to operate under the brand's logo, reputation, and name.

In addition to this, they also receive marketing materials such as supplies, location, and more.

In other words, a franchise is a business model where an entrepreneur operates the business. They use the company's logo, name, trademark, product, branding, and business system. In return for fees and other payments like royalties, licensing fees, etc., depending upon the terms of the contract of both parties.

Franchisor

The franchisor is a parent company that sells the rights to franchise its brand or company to Rajdhani Fashions franchisees. A franchisor is a person who has developed the brand, company, and operating systems.

On the decision to franchise the business, the franchisor offers the franchisees the right to their recognizable trademark, proven business model, established business system, and training and support.

Franchisee

The franchisee is an individual who purchases the rights to sell the services and products. Also, they utilize established and proven business systems.

Though the franchisee means buying an established business, franchisees should work hard to gain market trust and loyalty and attract talent. This will help them in growing their business. After all, it is the franchisee that runs the day-to-day business activities of a business.
